Telstar upgrade project approved

By ALISON ALOISIO

SAD 44 voters Tuesday approved a $2.5 million energy and ventilation upgrade project for the Telstar complex.

The district-wide vote was 2,042 to 1,183, according to Supt. Dave Murphy. Among individual towns, only Andover rejected the proposal, 332-177.

Other town results were: Bethel 999 yes, 397 no; Greenwood 277 yes, 153 no; Newry 144 yes, 72 no; Woodstock 445 yes, 229 no.

The work will be funded through two sources:

Bingham trails need Newry's blessing

By ALISON ALOISIO

A recreational trails plan for Bethel's Bingham land envisions many possibilities:

A hiking trail loop that could encompass three scenic waterfalls on Chapman Brook and its tributaries.

A hiking/mountain biking trail that follows the height of land at the top of the brook's watershed.

A daytrip in which cross-country skiers or mountain bikers could ride the Sunday River chairlift to the top of the mountain and follow a 15-kilometer trail down the other side through the Bingham land, then be shuttled back to Sunday River.

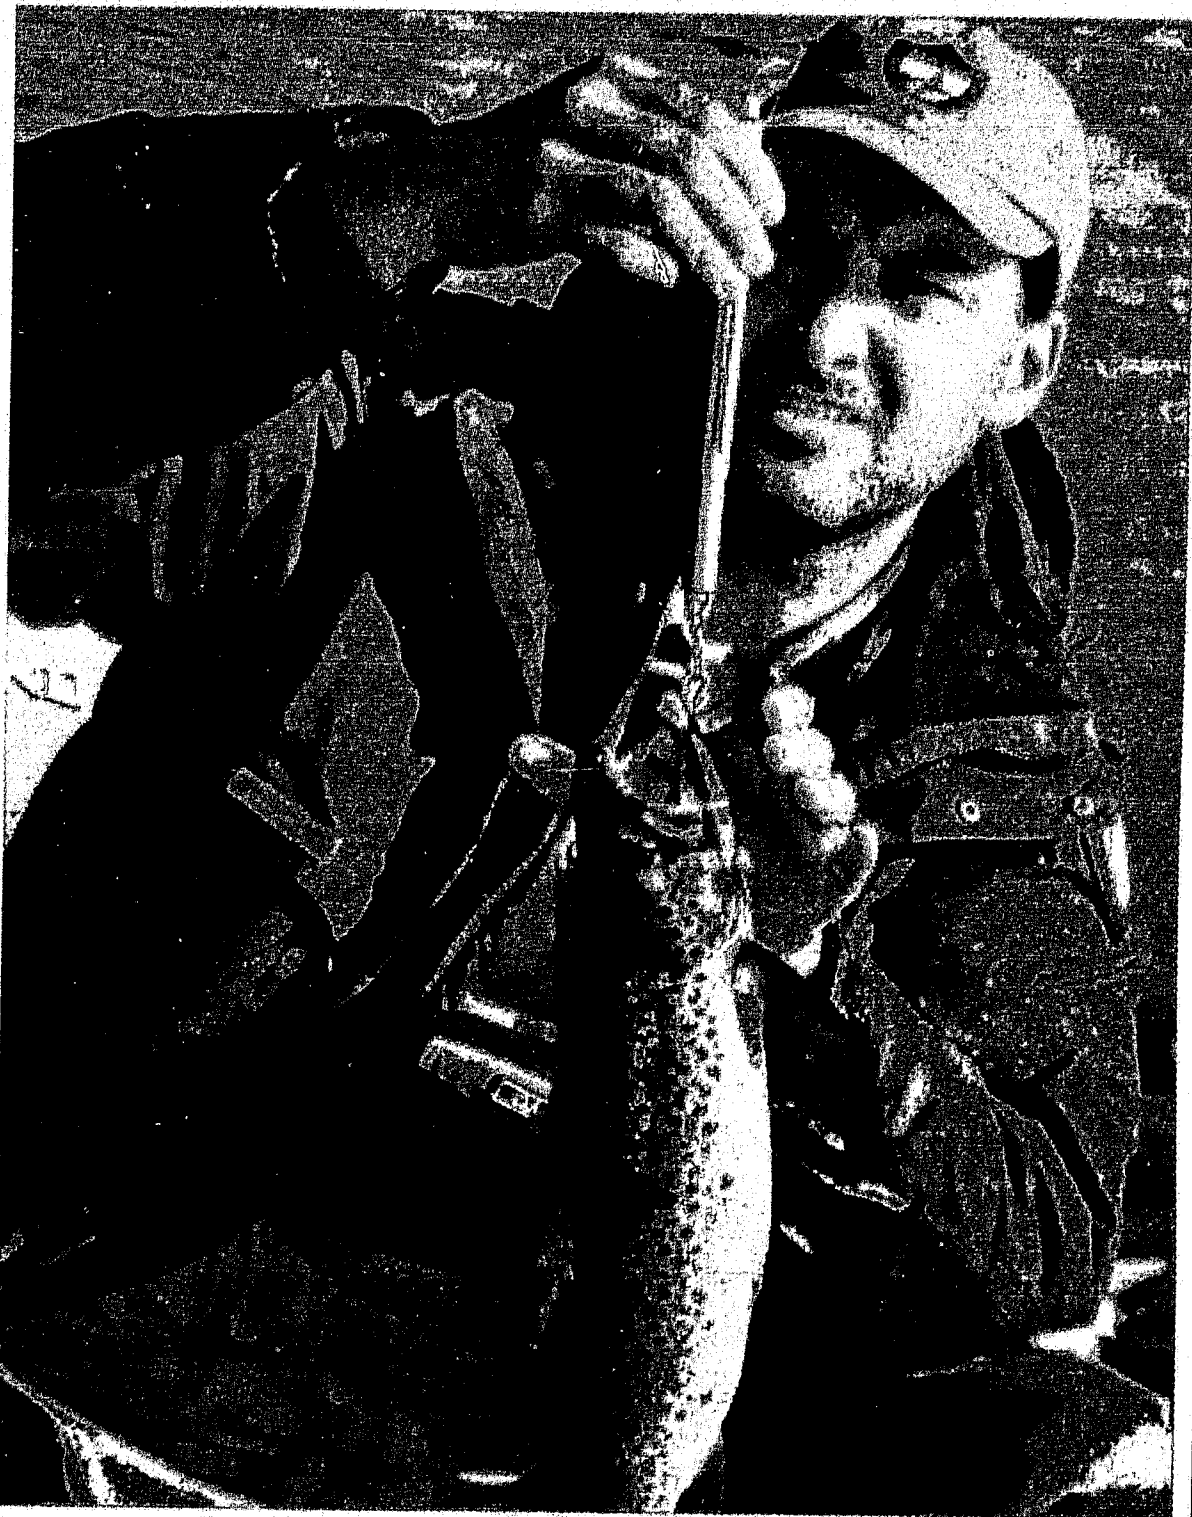

But for all that and more to happen, Bethel will

A salmon weighs in with IF&W

Inland Fisheries and Wildlife biologists Jim Pellerin and Brian Lewis gathered data recently on the fish in Lake Christopher, one of more than 300 lakes in the region south and west of the Androscoggin River that they cover on a rotating basis. IF&W stocks Lake Christopher each year with game fish, including landlocked salmon, brook trout and splake. The biologists set out "trapnets" near the shore, in the vicinity of the University of Maine 4-H Camp, to catch the fish. They checked them each day after setting the nets, for five days. After bringing them in from the net, the men placed the fish in a bucket and sedated them briefly with MS-222 (a powder) in order to be able to handle them. Here, Pellerin weighs a male landlocked salmon that is displaying "spawning coloration," he said, which can cause the fish to be mistaken for a brown trout. Pellerin also measured the length of the fish, and cut a small piece from the tail to mark them as having been caught (some were later recaptured). Several salmon weighed about four pounds. Other species caught included pickerel, salmon, splake, golden shiner, white sucker, brown bullhead (hornpout) and a large eel. On this day the men pulled in about two dozen fish. Their goal over the time period was around 30. Pellerin said most were in good shape. The salmon caught ranged in age from 1 to 3 years, most being over 2. Older ages are less common, he said, "due to the typically high winter harvest rates of legal sized salmon." The biologists also shared their project, and their knowledge, with students from SAD 17 who were at the camp for the day. The youngsters watched from the dock as each fish was tallied, then many of the students held a fish briefly before placing it back in the water. For another photo, see Page 7.

Philippines native loves her home in snows of Bethel

By SARAH PATRIQUIN

Special to the Bethel Citizen

For Elba Sacris-Bove of Bethel, snow is an important part of her life. She is the events and development coordinator for Maine Adaptive Skiing.

But dealing with the white stuff doesn't come naturally to the native of the Philippines.

While ski areas are starting to make snow in the mountains, the Philippines, on average, is enjoying temperatures in the mid-80s and mid-90s.

Elba came to the United States in 2007 after she met her husband, Greg Bove, online.

"We exchanged e-mails for a while. Then he decided he wanted to see the Philippines, and he came to visit," she said.

After they were married, they lived in Maryland for a time. Then they moved to Greg's hometown.

Elba remembers the first time she saw snow.

"It was like going inside a freezer," she said. "I was so excited. I played in it. I even tasted it."

But it didn't take her long to realize there was more to snow than just play.

Now, she says, "Shoveling is not my idea of fun."

Last winter Elba decided to meet the challenges of winter weather head-on by taking a job as a lift attendant at Mt. Abram.

"I think that was a good way to introduce myself to the weather," she said.

The first time she worked at the lift she wore seven layers of clothes. "But it was really fun," she said. "I liked working with the little kids."

MAS work

Elba said she has long had an interest in nonprofit organizations, prompting her to look for similar work in this area.

GARDEN VOLUNTEER THANKS

To the Editor:

Now that the frost has frizzled the Island gardens at the top of Main Street and they are being put to bed until next summer, it seems like a good time to recognize the volunteers who planted those flowers, watered and weeded them all summer. This year we recognize several new, younger workers: Martha Seigel, Amanda Moran, and Sarah Bryan. Thanks for all your enthusiasm and hard work, ladies.

Each of the "members" of this Bethel Garden Club signs up for one week during the summer when they water and weed the island beds. If it rains, you're in luck. If it's dry and hot...well...you hope the bugs are not out. But no matter which, it is always fun to hear the comments of the drivers who pause to thank you for enriching Bethel.

So, if you see one of the following people, give them a high five. It's the only way they get! To become a "member" just tell one of them you want to get in on the fun.

Thank you to those who planted the gardens (in the rain) at the top of Main Street: Lucia Schwarz, Jan Stowell, Ginny Gamble, Amanda Moran, Lida Iles, Lucy Nordahl, Sarah Bryan, and Jackie Bell, (who also welcomed us for breakfast before we went out to plant.) Thanks also to those who planted the Parkway: Lucy, Lucia, Amanda, Lida, and Sarah.

Karen Paul planted the Horse Trough on the Common. Becky Kendall planted and cared for the window boxes at the Town Office and the Public Library. Lucy Nordahl took care of the Parkway Island...a big summer watering/weeding crew were (in addition to those named above) Carol Nielson, Michelle Conroy, Beth Hodgdon, Rosemary Laban, and Janet Willie. Special thanks to the owners of the Chapman Inn who graciously allowed us to use their water. Dave Freiday of Earth Design Associates donated all the mulch we used and helped with the clean up.

So now it's time to think about raking and soon the shoveling!

Allidah Iles

HAUNTED HOUSE THANKS

To the Editor:

On Oct. 19 and 20 we held a Haunted House at the Andover Town Hall. It was a benefit for our Youth Program, a nonprofit group for everyone from anywhere for ages 1 to 100. We call ourselves "The Adventurers."

Upstairs in the town hall was what we called the "Gentle Room" for the younger crowd which included a Witch's Forest, Pirate Cove, Princess Tent, Fortune Telling, and a variety of games. We also had so many wonderful homemade and donated treats in our Spider Web Kitchen.

Downstairs is another story. The Haunted House itself was not for the faint of heart. You were greeted by a psychic warning to you not to enter. The guide took you through a cemetery inhabited by the dead, and not-so-dead. Next was a Bingo Game played by corpses and skeletons. After that was a room where a séance had gone horribly wrong. From there, you came into a butcher shop/torture room where there were many screaming victims and instruments of death. After that, a surprise head in a box and a room where all is not what it appears. Plus many shocking scares along the way.

Many hours were spent on the planning, set-up, operation, and de-construction.

We were very blessed to have an awesome venue, an amazing turnout, raised lots of money, and scared the boogies out of many a victim!

This is a huge THANK YOU to the wonderful individuals, businesses, and families who contributed: Angela Bouknight, Becky Collette, The Prentice Family, Pastor Jane Rich, Ann Morton, Brenda Lee Ross, Paula Smith, Elissa Lufkin, Fred Garbo, John Emery, David Smith, Sue Heffleman, Cindy Gammon, Amber and Esau Cooper, Donna Morse, Deanna and Bruce Fowles, Louise Jarvis, Dee Fields, Denise Cross, Jean Shaw, Julie Merrill, Aislyn Forbes, Nolan Fowles, Bing Cross, Peggy Madigan, Taran Vitale, Thomas Wright, Wayne Howe, Charlie Raymond, Dan Hart, Brianna Vitale, Lisa Gammon, Olivia York, Corey Collidge, Calvin Glover, Selena Cintron, Angel Cintron, Madison Smith, Peggy Madigan, Dax Hoff, Cece Gannon, Tristen Webber, Lynda Theriault, Chris Lawton, Justin Varnum, Clinton Lawton, Pete's Hardware, LeighAnna Cluff, The Andover Congregational Church, Dunkin Donuts of Rumford, Ellis Pond Variety, Shaylee Morton, Melinda Averill, Hannaford of Rumford, Andover Selectman, and the Andover Town Office. Plus there were many people who dropped off goodies anonymously. And if we've forgotten you, we sincerely apologize.

We look forward to an even bigger and scarier event next year!

Thank you all once again and have a safe and Happy Halloween!

Representatives of the Andover Youth Group/The Adventurers: Chad Bishop, Sharon Hutchins, Nancy Lovelace, Michael Cintron, and TJ Bouknight

BUSINESS EXPO/TASTE THANKS

To the Editor:

Once again many enjoyed the recent events at Telstar High School - Taste of Bethel & Beyond and the Community & Business Expo.

Telstar's cafeteria featured the Taste of Bethel & Beyond. It was amazing! Many thanks to the following restaurants which served scrumptious food: Black Diamond Steakhouse, Crossstone Restaurant at Mollycokett Motel, Erin's Café on Main, Dunkin' Donuts, Good Food Store, Rooster's Roadhouse, Smokin' Good BBQ, and the Sudbury Inn. Thank you, Dave Nivus, for coordinating the event.

Telstar's gymnasium hosted the Community & Business Expo showcasing area nonprofits and businesses. And, new this year, workshops for job seekers and entrepreneurs were offered by Maine Career Centers and Maine Small Business Development Center. Attendees enjoyed the attractive, informative booths, the giveaways and raffles, and networking opportunities.

These events succeed thanks to sponsors, participating businesses, and volunteers. Norway Savings Bank again was the Presenting Sponsor. Its continued support of chamber projects is so appreciated. Thanks to our media sponsors: Gleason Media Services, Sun Media, and Turner Publishing helping us market the event; our Supporting Sponsors: Northeast Bank, United Insurance, and WJ Wheeler Insurance Co., and our Basic Sponsors: Edward Jones, Hebron Academy, and Key Bank. Cross Excavation donated a cord of wood as a grand raffle prize. True North Adventureware, Western Maine Economic Development, Edward Jones, and Tourmaline Media were additional raffle donors. Additionally, many thanks to all the business and community vendors for their contributions to the event's success; to Bethel Alliance Church, Bethel Fire Department, and the Bethel Inn Resort for lending tables and chairs; to Dan Hart and Telstar HS for use of the facility; and to Ivory Currier and his apprentice, Colton, for electrical expertise.

Volunteers cannot be thanked enough. Most of the following help the chamber of commerce continually: Laurence Austin, Sarah Borggaard Glasfeld, Jim and Carol Bourque, Read Dickinson, Colleen Files, Dave Freiday, Sara Hemeon, John Holliday, Scott Hynek, Maggie Kroenke, Sean McDonough, Rene McGrew, Amanda Moran, Lacy Newbold, Mia Purcell, Joyce Roma, Lloyd Sweetser, Hiram Towle, Bob and Joan Westfall, Matt and Doug Zinchuk.

Robin Zinchuk
Executive Director, Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

SKI CLUB THANKS

To the Editor:

Thanks so much to Crescent Park Elementary School for use of its facility and to the huge group of volunteers that made the 31st annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale a success. This event is the club's big fundraiser; the funds support Nordic skiing programs in the area schools and programs which foster outdoor activity in the community.

The sale helps folks find and sell affordable winter sports equipment. These people made it happen: Doug Alford, Albert Aniel, Nancy Babcock, Dwayne Bennett, Jacob Bennett, Trish and Carla Boyle-Wight, David Walker, Chris Barstow, Janet, Kijah and Jahmai Bartlett, Dave Bean, Bethel Kitchen Design for the generous use of its truck, Ian and Laura Blair, Karen Brown-Mohr, Carrie Casey, Beth, Brad and Caleb Clarke, Mike Cooper, Betsey Cooper, Tom DeLuca, Terry Ensslen, Landon Fake, Dee Fournier, Linda Gallagher, Linda Gamble, Dillon Gillies, Heidi Godomsky, Jonathan and Kate Goldberg, Gould Nordic, Mountain Biking and Girls JV Soccer Teams and Gould Outing Club; Dylan, Isaac and Norm Greenberg and Tracyn Thayer, Brooke Hallett, Mary Hanraets, Cathy Heffernan, Chris, Heather, Luke and Tucker Hayward, Lorrie and Mike Hoeh, Shanta Hoff, Ken Hotopp, Gary Inman, Wade Kavanaugh, Marie and Steve Keane, Heather Kellogg, Kristen Kimball, Jesper Kruse, Adam Leff, Mitch and Griffin Lehman, Maggie Lore, Karen McElroy, Mahoosuc Mountain Rescue Team, Mahoosuc Realty for generous use of its truck, Adam and Ann Marie Mahar, Nancy Murphy, Jeff and Pattie Parsons, Callie and Dave Pecunies, Bruce and Suzanne Pierce, Jim and Julia Reuter, Kate Rideout, Joyce Roma, Leslie Rowse, Marion Sandstrom, Cheryl Shattenberg, Brett Shifrin, Kirk and Martha Siegel, Peter, Sarah and Max Southern, Ann Speth, Chris Tarr, Telstar Middle School Nordic Ski Team, Peter Thayer, Sarah Weaver and Doug Zinchuk. Thank you to anyone I may have missed - there were so many volunteers who jumped in and helped and it is much appreciated.

Thanks to all in the community who shopped; see you next year - always the last Friday and Saturday of October!

YOUTH FOOTBALL THANKS

To the Editor:

The Wolfpack and Spartan Football teams would like to thank all who contributed in making our public dinner a success!

A big Thank You goes out to the parents of the football players who donated food and drinks. Thank you to Pizza Hut and the Lyman Family for their large donations of garlic bread. We appreciate all the hard workers in the kitchen as well as in the dining area. The football players did a great job serving our guests. Thank you to the Legion Hall for allowing us to hold our event in their building.

Thank you to the following businesses that donated items to our raffle: Ken's Yamaha, Hobb's Lucky Lanes, Lowell's Saw Shop, Maine Line Products, Hot Colors, True North Adventure, Breaux's Too, Western Maine Supply, Viewer's Choice Video, Dunkin Donuts, Maine Black Bear, We Party Supply and Bethel Outdoor Adventure.

We appreciate the following people who donated raffle items: Jolene Perry-Dumas, Michele Richardson, Nancy Gilson, Mark Richardson, Jackie Hughes, and Alice F. Hoyt. The football teams would not exist if it were not for the support from the Town of Greenwood and the terrific coaches. Thank you so much!

It is somewhat fashionable to consider talk about the weather as the last resort of an empty mind. Some feel a bit of superiority in ignoring extremes of cold and heat, being above such concerns. However, such talk goes on and on and on. Perhaps it is an indication that we are not yet complete robots, completely alienated from the world of nature. In the city one dials a number, gets a report, decides what weight of clothing will be suitable to wear, then life goes on in the same routine. In the country it is quite another matter; the details of the day depend upon the season.

September is always an enigma. Frost can come the very first week of the month, can ruin the flower gardens and the tomatoes, then will follow day after day of summer warmth. Other years the frost holds off until the very end of the month. The annuals have spent themselves. All the sweet corn has been eaten the tomatoes ripen on the vine and do not have to be picked and stored. One spends each successive day outdoors hoarding the sunshine and warmth against the long winter cold. All inside work is abandoned, neglected. Comes a snippy cold evening.

Should one start the furnace? No, if cold in the a.m., one can wear a sweater until the sun comes up. Day comes, it is warm. You feel very elated at having for once outwitted a nature that has foiled you all summer by sending rain to spoil the hay or not sending rain when the crops need moisture. Finally an evening when it is really chilly beyond the circle of the black iron stove. "I'll make a furnace fire," says B.B. "Oh, no," say I, "you're going to be in town all evening, I'll be all right."

He goes. I go into the study with the paper, too cold to sit there and read, back to sit in the kitchen. I think it would be fun to take a bath in the zinc tub on the braided rug before the stove with the oven door open. I light one candle only, fill the tub. How does one get clean? Simple. First sit inside with the feet out over the edge on the floor. It is easy to drizzle hot suds over the shoulders and down the back. Then sit outside with the feet inside. The quiet is broken only by the soft purring of the stove. Here one sits in the stillness. What is one anyway? Only a pin prick of mental effort to get clean. With an ordinary bath or shower one thinks not, following a routine with no thoughts. We have a book on Zen. Must hunt it up and look to see if any mention of bathing. I hear the truck coming, hastily get into a bathrobe, dump the water from the tub and remove all traces, light and big lamp.

B.B. comes in silkily asking if I've been warm and I tell him indeed I have. I stow the provisions and to bed. Awake in the morning with cold feet. From the window I see a rose garnet red band across the sky. The mountains are black and forbidding. "I'm cold, summer is gone," I wail to B.B.

"Naturally," says he. "I'm cold too. After all, it is October in the hills of Maine. I should have made a furnace fire last night." He stomps off to the barn. I must make amends for vetoing the fire last eve, jump into long pants, a long-sleeved wool sweater, race below and stir up bran muffins. B.B. came in from the chores just as I am putting them into the oven, saying he hasn't time to wait for them to bake. "All right, I'll warm them up for lunch."

"What's this?" says B.B., taking a cellophane sack from the icebox. "A fresh Steinpilz I found by the stone wall late yesterday afternoon. It's to go with the scrambled eggs." B.B. starts beating eggs and setting the table, announcing that with all this fine provender he'll make time to wait for the muffins. We slide the kitchen table from under the windows over in front of the stove. Beloved summer is gone, but life is now. The sun starts streaming in, we have hot food, good health, a new day. I poke my nose outside as B.B. goes off; the sun has gone under a cloud. It's too cold to work in the garden, may as well work inside.

NEWRY FESTIVAL THANKS

To the Editor:

The Newry Fall Festival and Craft Fair was held for the third year this past Oct. 27. Each year we have grown, and this year was no exception. We had more crafters than ever before, and we also raised more money than every before.

I would like to thank all those who helped in making this year a success. I would like to thank the Town of Newry for allowing us the use of the Bear River Grange Hall; Rocky Berry, who put up fliers all over the Bethel, Bryant Pond, Rumford, Mexico and Auburn areas; Carri Frechette at the Bethel Citizen for designing our newspaper ad; Nana Wight and Anna Schaffler for working the bake sale portion of our event; Brad Wight for the use of numerous items; Kurt Wight for helping with the set up and break down; and a big, big thank you to all who took the time to bake for our sale. We had a large number of people who baked items from cookies to pies and loaves of bread and homemade candies.

All proceeds of the bake sale we are donating to the Christmas for Families Foundation, which is a local charity that is based right here in Bethel. This year we are able to donate $225.

Thank you to all the crafters who came out and spent the day with us, and thank you to everyone who stopped by - we hope to see you all again next year.

THS FOOTBALL THANKS

To the Editor:

The Telstar Football Boosters would like to thank the community and local businesses for their support of the Telstar Football team during the 2012 season. The team completed their second year as a varsity level team in the Campbell Conference. The team had three wins; one preseason, one during the season and a post season JV win.

We would like to extend our sincere appreciation to the following: Bethel Shop N' Save, Bethel Inn and Country Club, Mallard Mart, and Home Slice Pizza; Gary Wight, Brandon Palmer, Becky Grenier, Victoria Ryerson, Sonya Merrill, Julia Cherkis, David Cherkis, Dave Queller, Scott Haines, Chuck & Kathy Mason, Annaliese Smith, Belinda Glover & Bud, Eileen Rose, Kelly Harrington, Katie, Ken & Jacob (Waterboy) Lyman, Kenny Haas, Derrick Poland, Dan Wheeler, Taber Pasternak, Holly Merrill, Doug & Jodie Wilson, Brad and Brenda Wight, Terry O'Connor, Shelly Corriveau, Paula Wheeler and anyone we may have overlooked.

Thanks for your continued support!

Elba

"I really have been looking for an organization to join, an organization that really matters to me," she said.

Last summer she volunteered at the Mahosuc Land Trust, helping with their annual appeal fundraiser.

Three months ago she was hired by Maine Adaptive Sports & Recreation, which provides adaptive lessons and activities in recreational summer and winter sports for people with physical disabilities.

"They had an opening for this position, which is the events and development coordinator," she said. "I applied and then I was lucky to be chosen."

It is her job to plan the 2013 Ski-A-Thon, the organization's largest event of the year. The event, along with volunteer work and donations, helps Maine Adaptive Sports & Recreation provide their services free of charge.

"The Ski-A-Thon is really huge," she said. At first the job seemed overwhelming, she said, "but everyone is helping out and everything is getting organized."

On Sept. 14 Elba took another big step.

She became a U.S. citizen, a choice she made because her husband is a citizen but also because, she said, "America is a great place to be."

Greg helped her study for her citizenship exam by asking her the test questions.

"He said, 'I don't even know the answers to some of these,'" said Elba.

One question was easy, she said: "Name a U.S. state that borders Canada."

She took her citizenship oath in Portland with about 37 other people, from 30 countries including Switzerland, Russia, Poland and several African countries. The judge who administered the oath was himself not an American native.

Elba is happy to be in what is now her country, and her state.

"We've been to Florida, we've been to Pennsylvania, we lived in Maryland, and I still find Bethel, Maine the best place to be," she said. "It's our home."

Bingham

need help from Newry, where the 2,300-acre Bingham parcel is located.

Bethel and its Conservation Commission have been planning for the protection and use of the former Bethel Water District parcel since acquiring it in a Consent Agreement with the state last year.

At a workshop Monday, Bethel selectmen reviewed a draft Forest Management Plan prepared by consultant Jerry Bley. The plan incorporates a report on recreational trails "opportunities" prepared by John Morton of Morton Trails in Vermont.

But because the "Bingham Forest," as it is referred to in the management plan, is actually in Newry, the land falls under that town's ordinance restrictions. The parcel is in the Resource Protection zone, which protects public water supplies by restricting activities.

Although the land is no longer considered a public water supply, it must be maintained as a potential backup to Bethel's five-year-old well system.

Landon Fake of the BCC told selectmen the Newry ordinance "doesn't specifically apply to this anymore, because it's not a public water supply. But we need to maintain it as if it could be. Whether what we want to do can fit within their zoning system, we're not entirely sure yet."

The Newry ordinance limits "land-based recreation activities, equipment and maintenance," which includes trail systems, and requires Planning Board approval for such activities, according to Bley's plan.

The ordinance also states that "Commercial Recreation," defined "as any commercial enterprise which receives a fee in return for the provision of some recreational activity including but not limited to: amusement facilities, racquet and tennis clubs, health facility, amusement parks, gymnasiums and swimming pools, shooting ranges, skiing, golf course, and the like," are prohibited in the zone.

Bley's plan mentions the possibility of user fees at some point in the future, though he said the ordinance appears to refer to commercial fees on a much larger scale.

Fake said he and Town Manager Jim Doar plan to attend a Newry Planning Board meeting to ask for guidance.

In other discussion on the Management Plan, Bley said Morton's trails plan calls for a lower, middle and upper recreational trail system. There would be "core" multi-use trails, 14 feet wide, interwoven with a broader network of narrower trails.

The development of any cross-country ski trails should avoid direct competition with other ski centers in the area, he said. There is currently an effort underway to develop a nonprofit cooperative among local cross-country ski areas to share resources, he said, and that could provide a means to incorporate skiing in the Bingham Forest into the community. More skiing options, he said, could help existing businesses by drawing more people.

Securing an access road to the forest could be more complicated than establishing the trail system, Doar said. The Daisy Bryant Road could be an option, but there are questions about a public easement for it. Selectman Don Bennett said the road would also have to be upgraded.

As for financing, sustainable timber harvest revenue (estimated at an average of $15,000 to $20,000 annually) will likely support the payment of taxes and general property expenses, but not recreational development/management.

The plan also discusses the need to find a balance between protecting water quality and wildlife and allowing timber harvesting for revenue.

To fund the trails, Bley said sources of revenue could include grants, user fees, carbon credits and endowments.

Bley's plan also recommends the Bingham Forest be overseen by a "Bethel Forest Authority," similar in structure to the Bethel Airport Authority. Members should ideally have expertise in water quality protection, recreation, timber management, wildlife and tourism, he said.

Selectmen recommended that membership be open to Newry residents.

A town meeting would be required to change the Bethel ordinance to accommodate the new entity, Doar said.

He recommended a special town meeting take place in the near future to establish a BFA. Selectmen could then appoint members, he said, "who could meet to determine some of the priorities, to make some recommendations on what to tackle first, and to put together a budget for what it's going to take, and get going up there."

Bley's plan can be found on the Bethel town website at www.bethelmaine.org/Pages/BethelME_BComm/Bingham%20Management%20Plan.

Newry comments

Newry selectmen also met Monday, before the Bethel board did. They were cautious about the question of zoning and other aspects of the Bingham project.

Brooks Morton said Fake had asked him about the possibility of changing Newry's zoning ordinance, if needed, to accommodate the trails. Morton said he didn't give Fake a solid answer, noting that he couldn't speak for the town, which would have to vote on the issue.

Administrator Loretta Powers said there had also been discussion in Bethel about Newry possibly, at some point in the future, donating the tax money Bethel pays to her town on the land (about $5,000 annually) back to the Bingham effort.

Chairman Wendy Hanscom wondered if there was another way around the question, perhaps ultimately making the Bingham land tax exempt.

She said the board would be available if Bethel representatives wanted to talk to them.

$1.2 million that has been raised in taxes and set aside by voters in recent years, and $1.3 million from a federal Qualified School Construction Bond, at an effective interest rate of 0 percent.

"I was pleased and appreciative to see the level of support that the district voters provided for this project, especially given the state of the economy," Murphy said Wednesday.

Murphy said he expects some of the less intrusive parts of the project will begin immediately, and other portions during vacation weeks and in the summer. The project is slated to be completed by the fall.

Other local results

Voter turnout was generally strong locally. In Gilead, 80 percent of registered voters voted, according to Town Clerk Lin Chapman.

In national elections, Bethel area towns matched overall Maine results, favoring Obama/Biden for president/vice president, Independent Angus King for the U.S. Senate, and incumbent Democratic Rep. Mike Michaud for the Second Congressional District.

State Rep. Jarrod Crockett (R-Bethel) bested Democratic challenger Mike Broderick of Bethel in House District 91 towns in this area, and was projected Wednesday to win district-wide.

In Greenwood Democrat Mary Lou St. John edged Independent Tom Winsor in the Maine House District 95 vote, 206-204, while in West Paris Winsor came out ahead, 432-403. Winsor led narrowly district-wide Wednesday in incomplete results.

In Andover Independent Matthew Peterson bested Republican Thomas Skolfield 320-165 in the House District 92 race, and was projected to win district-wide.

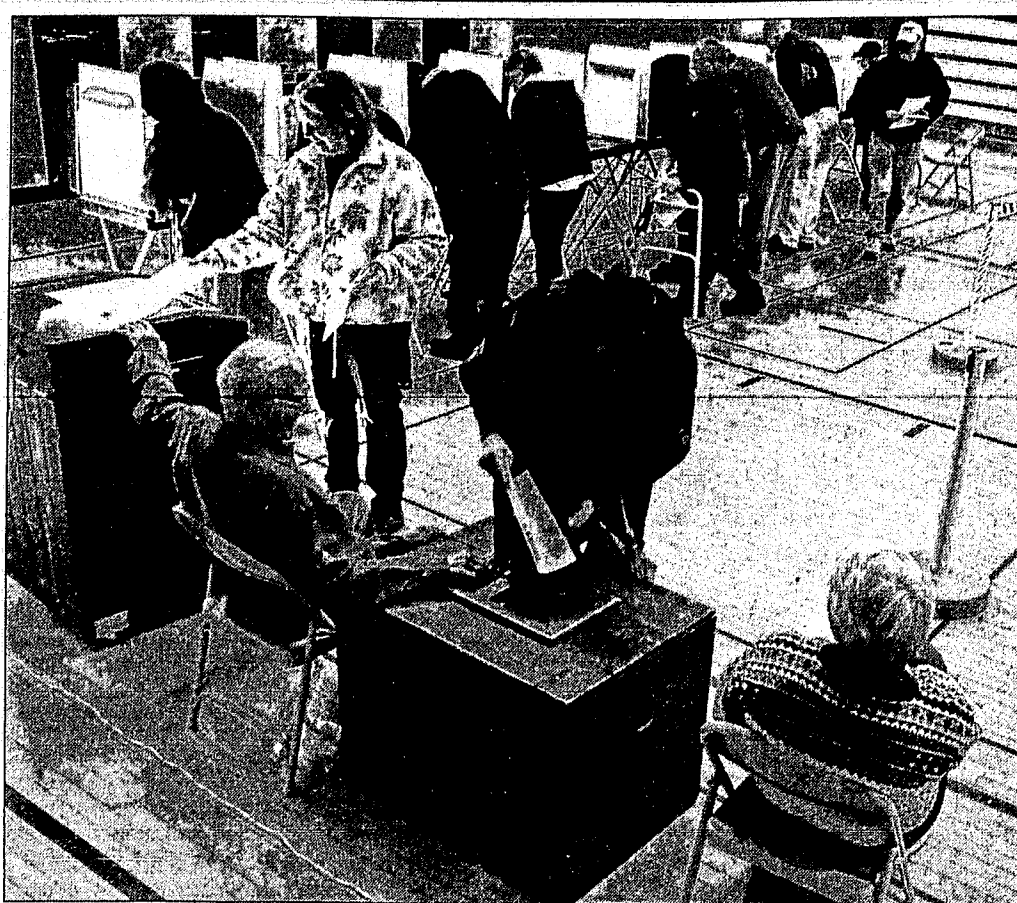

In State Senate District

14, incumbent Democrat John Patrick won locally and was projected to win district-wide.

In statewide referendum question votes, results on Question 1 (same-sex marriage) were mixed locally. Albany, Bethel, Greenwood and Newry approved the measure. The question passed statewide.

Questions 3 (Conservation bond), 4 (Transportation bond) and 5 (Water bond) were all approved by local towns and expected to pass statewide, but Question 2 (Education bond) received approval in only Bethel/Mason and Hanover and its fate was uncertain statewide Wednesday.

Wednesday, Oct. 31

At 3:16 p.m. Sgt. Tim Holland and Deputies Mike Halacy and Roy Hodsdon responded to Pine Tree Road in Woodstock for a report of a possible burglary. Suspects were located and questioned. Ultimately the officers received a confession and an arrest was made. Property was recovered and impounded.

Thursday, Nov. 1

At 10:16 a.m. Deputy Josh Wyman responded to Broad Street in Bethel for a criminal mischief report. Three windows appeared to have been shot out by a BB gun. The case is under investigation.

Saturday, Nov. 3

At 1:13 p.m. Deputies Mike Halacy and George Cayer responded to Grover Hill in Bethel for a report that an old State Police car was driving aggressively on Grover Hill, and it forced the complainant onto the shoulder of the road. The vehicle was not found.

At 7 p.m. Deputy Matt Noyes summonsed a juvenile male in Bethel for furnishing a place for minors to consume alcohol, operating without a license, possession of cigarettes and administrative OUI. The case was a result of an ambulance assist call at a business for intoxicated uncooperative subject.

Bethel

By DON BENNETT

Welcome to the Bingham Forest Authority Monday evening

Bethel's selectmen and town manager held a workshop meeting to hear all the 40 details about Bethel's side of Barker Mountain that lies in Newry. Jerry Bley from Readfield, Maine, told the Board his grand idea for a whole new slice of Bethel life. Summing it all up, our side of Barker will change from a mountain of natural beauty to a mountain of government red tape and challenge for Bethel taxpayers. Water District and Newry people did not attend the workshop. A whole new authority is proposed to handle details and convince our budget committee it is for the public good.

The Bley Plan covers the side of Barker not occupied by Sunday River Skiway. Augusta's lawyers had first crack at telling us what could and couldn't be done with the Newry land originally bought in 1925 for the Bethel Water Company. If the purchased tract of land ceased to be used as watershed, the Water Company's deed from Mr. Bingham stated, "If said tract of land be abandoned for use as a watershed, ownership of this tract shall pass to the State of Maine. Tract shall be managed as a public park, game and bird preserve and or state forest."

Bethel has now become the State's executive agent so to speak without State paying for any of the above. First priority is to protect water quality (Chapman Brook); then there is a forest management plan, an enhance wildlife values plan, Chapman Brook protected zone, a riparian management zone, (add in Newry designated zones), recreation and trail plans including snowmobiles but no commercial campgrounds and a host of experts to be hired as monitors and consultants for timber management, trail and watershed policing and biologists to insure plant life is properly conserved. Newry continues to take Bethel tax revenue and if we are lucky timber sales will pay for all the rest.

Mr. Bley closed by recommending a new Bingham Forest Authority of town appointees should be created to take care of all of the above.

Sign Committee Updates

Thursday, Nov. 1, Bethel's sign ordinance reform committee met in the Alger Conference Room at Gould Academy's Alumni and Development house. Meeting was conducted via a teleconference arrangement so that some could attend in person or attend virtually by dialing a phone number and access code. This allowed three members who were out of town to participate. The audio setup at Gould was excellent. Conversations were clear and distinct so that the meeting moved along smoothly. Those attending in person had copies of proposed sign ordinance language defining roadside and pedestrian directional signs and kiosks. Generally, what was presented expands on what the present ordinance lays out in Section 136 paragraph 9 (if you are in the mind to look it up). Three important comments were made about how to proceed: one was the importance of on-site visits to assess locations for gateway signs and kiosks as well as proposed pedestrian signage/kiosks, point two was the importance of a town map with proposed sign/kiosk locations positioned on the map (ideally in 3D) and point three was when an ordinance is written language must be "black and white" no gray area lan-

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Do you ever have those times when you feel like everything is conspiring against you? And doesn't it usually happen at the time when you can least afford it?

I've been having just such a time and it all started with the time change. I have made no secret of how technologically impaired I am so it should come as no surprise that changing the time on all the various digital devices in my home is quite a challenge.

Considering that I have had the same devices for some time one would think that between time changes and occasional power outages I would remember how to reset the darn clocks. One would be wrong in that thought because I never do remember and have to resort to pulling manuals out to guide me through. I have a history of misplacing just about everything except the manuals to all my small appliances. I've always made sure I know where they were because without them every clock I own would be at least an hour off. However, when I needed them last week they had disappeared.

After a frantic and unsuccessful search I tried my luck at resetting all the clocks without the benefit of instructions. Though none of the clocks exactly agree with each other I decided they were close, enough and went to bed.

My own internal clock didn't reset itself, however, and I was wide awake at 5:30 a.m. I consoled myself by being pretty sure that I did correctly reset my high-tech grind and brew coffee maker and a fresh hot cup of coffee would start my day and all would be well.

As it turned out I did a fine job of setting the coffee maker's clock, but the coffee maker's fancy filter decided it no longer wanted to function. A coffee sludge was all over the kitchen counter and floor and the pot contained a little mud-like water and a lot of grounds.

My husband and I went to church as much to have the coffee after the service as to gain any spiritual salvation.

A smart person would have had replacement filters on hand or at least a jar of instant coffee to use in the case of an emergency, but I never claimed to be very smart. These fancy filters are only available by ordering online, which I keep forgetting to do and I'm not a real fan of instant coffee so I never buy any. There would be no choice but to buy a new coffee maker if I have any plans to drink coffee that day. I had a sinking feeling as I cleaned up the mess that it was going to be a bad day.

My husband and I went to church as much to have the coffee after the service as to gain any spiritual salvation. I guess that I should have been paying more attention to the sermon rather than try to figure out how I would work a new coffee maker into my anemic budget because as it turned out the coffee maker was only the beginning.

We live close to the church so I walk and Henry rides in his power wheelchair. On the way home his power chair died in the middle of the road. I knew it wasn't a clock issue because there is no clock on the chair and I knew it wasn't a battery issue because it was fully charged. A little wrench was blinking on the controller and I knew that meant an expensive repair.

After I got Henry home by disengaging the drive wheels and pushing him, which is no easy chore for my aging body, I went to the store to buy a new coffee maker. I was almost home when the "Check Engine" light came on in my minivan. I parked the darn thing and tried to forget about it.

Since then my washing machine decided it no longer wanted to spin, my gas stove gave up its last breath of propane and the DVD player is doing some very strange things.

Woe is me; I should have stayed in bed. Why me, why me, why me?

As I was feeling pretty sorry for myself I caught a glimpse of the evening news showing the devastation from Superstorm Sandy in New York and New Jersey. There were many people milling around the rubble that had once been their homes looking for any scrap of their lives they could salvage.

I don't take comfort from others' misfortune, but their misfortune did put things in perspective for me. I just have to tighten my budget a bit and sooner or later everything will be back to normal. It will be a very long time before the storm victims can call their lives normal.

The good news is that I was able to program my new coffee maker and the way I see it when all else fails I'll at least be able to have a fresh hot cup of coffee, that is until the next time change.

Kimball Park

This week someone suggested that I write a short account of Kimball Park's history for my Citizen column. The suggestion came at the right time because with the "Big" election finally here, Kimball Park's founder, Ira Kimball, was not only a politician he helped in organizing Bethel's and Oxford County's Republican Party. Historian Lapham wrote that Ira Kimball was somewhat conservative in his views and acts, always proceeded with deliberation, but his sound judgment was rarely at fault and in the councils of his party his views had great weight.

In 1856 Ira Kimball received 320 votes for Representative to the Maine Legislature from Bethel and his opponent from Grafton, James M. Brown, a well-known "timber baron," received 194 votes. He was the first Republican elected to the legislature from Bethel.

In 1853 a Universalist Church was built in Bethel with support from Ira Kimball, who was also one of the first group of forty three residents to become members. Mr. Kimball's efforts in support of the Universalists seems to have led him to establishing Kimball Park, although this may have been more of a church-associated undertaking than one of individual developer. Kimball may have already owned the land, which became known as Kimball Park.

Ira Kimball was born on his family's Middle Intervale farm in 1816 but moved to Bethel Hill as a young man. He became a well-known merchant, trader, storekeeper. His store and others in a building located near today's driveway entrance to Mill Hill Inn burned near the end of the Civil War along with Kimball's house. A rebuilt Kimball Block opened in 1866 and Mr. Kimball in the meantime purchased the house known today as the Chapman Inn. Kimball remodeled the house to look somewhat as it does today.

Ira Kimball was twice married having eight children. His first wife was Joanna Rowe of Bethel (Ceylon Rowe's aunt) and their second child, Emily, married Samuel D. Philbrook (the Philbrook Place guy). Joanna died in 1847 and Ira remarried - his second wife was Salome B. Chapman, a granddaughter of Rev. Eliphaz Chapman.

Randy Bennett's "Illustrated History of Bethel" states that in 1857, Mr. Kimball built the house behind the Universalist Church. Ceylon Rowe and Ira Kimball both operated stores in the Kimball Block. When Ceylon Rowe married Mary Grover in 1864, they bought a house in Kimball Park, built in 1861, that members of the Rowe family then occupied for the next 114 years. It has recently been remodeled into condos. While all this was going on Mr. Kimball fell ill from an unspecified disease, sold his house to William E. Skillings who was president of the Skillings Mill Company (in what is now called Skillington) (Dr. Gehring supposedly suggested the name) went south hoping to regain his health but died in 1866."

From Ned Robertson via Facebook, Nov. 2

"My office is sold, my car is packed, and I leave for Maine tomorrow morning. I will start full time as the new dentist at the Penobscot Indian Nation in Old Town this coming Monday, Nov. 5. No more two weeks here, two weeks there. 44 years away from Maine. That's way too long!

Jewel L. Clark, the artist and singer-songwriter who lives in Bethel, illustrated the newly released children's book "Horse Tails by Horses in Harness." The book was written by Patricia Probert Gott of South Paris. Gott, who has owned, raised, and trained horses since she was eight years old, has written thirteen books about horses. This book tells the story of Clyde, a young colt separated from his mother. Clyde doesn't know what kind of a horse he is so he interviews thirteen breeds of horses, including mini horses, Morgans, and Percherons, to find out what kind of work he'll do when he grows up. The book is recommended for children under eleven.

The cover drawing depicts two Haflinger horses, Buddy and Nick, owned by Lance Bean of Woodstock. The book may be purchased at Books N Things in Norway, Smedberg's Farm Stand in Oxford, <http://www.prgottbooks.net/>, or <http://www.amazon.com/>.

Construction work was completed this week at the Bethel United Methodist Church. A new drainage system was put in and repair work done on the building annex, including replacement of sills and clapboards. The work was done by David Berry and his crew, Haines Family Businesses, and Craig Ryerson.

Last week I wrote about the slight drop in Maine gas prices, always a good thing for us. On Sunday, my mother and I went to Kennebunk to visit former Bethel residents Gene Descoteau and Dennis Hayden at their new home. We found gas prices as low as $3.45 in the Biddeford-Arundel area.

The Bethel Dog Park committee has a new supply of "Friends of Bethel Dog Park" calendars and tee-shirts. The 2013 calendar features pictures of local dogs. Tee-shirts are available in various sizes (up to XXL) and colors, including blue, brown, grey, and pink. If you'd like to get calendars and teeshirts, you can contact me, or come to the next dog park supporters meeting on Monday, Nov. 26, at 6 p.m. at the Mahoosuc Land Trust Building on Route 2, next door to the Crossroads Diner. If you can't stay for the meeting, come early to get calendars and shirts.

I'd prefer it would wait a while.

Jennifer Shaw Huard told me that their son Frost will be celebrating his first birthday this Saturday, Nov. 10. Happy Birthday, Frost, from the whole neighborhood!

Alder River Grange held a regular meeting on Oct. 10 with eight members present. There will be a turkey supper on Nov. 10 at 5 p.m. and all veterans will have a free supper.

The Grange will meet on Nov. 9 for a peel party to do the potatoes and the squash. If anyone wants to help, it would be very much appreciated. There will be a 6 p.m. supper and a very short meeting at about 6:30 p.m. and right into the peel party.

Sadly I couldn't come up with much news. Thus, here is the new Trivia question: What did Abiel Chandler report on April 27, 1880?

Hopefully I have more news next week for you. Please, call me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net. You can also come and see me at the InnSide Shop on Main Street in Bethel. We have a lot of nice things and one never knows what can be found there.

Have a great week and stay warm.

it works quite well. The red squirrels have figured out how to hang upside down just right so they can get some seeds. Last Sunday, there were two of them fighting over who got to eat at the feeder. He also said that he caught a glimpse of a bird that looked like Mrs. Cardinal, so that makes sense since Lise saw Mr. Cardinal a little while ago.

We just bought a squirrel-proof bird feeder and put it out last Sunday. The little birds were happily visiting the feeder and picking out sunflower seeds.

We were gone most of the afternoon and when we came home just before dark there was a red squirrel running along the porch railing. I did not see him at the feeder, but my guess is that he figured out how to get seeds without the feeder closing up on him. I have saved the little tag that says "Squirrel Proof" and plan on taking a picture of the feeder (when the squirrel comes back), with the tag attached, to send in to the company. I wish someone would really invent a squirrel-proof feeder!

While I was watching earlier in the day, there were Chickadees, Juncos and finches that found the feeder within no time at all.

Our son, Tim, was at the house last Saturday with three of the grandchildren, William, Ajay and Annie. Sidney, who plays hockey for Berlin, had a game at Plymouth State University Ice Arena.

Andover

By JANE RICH

By the time you read this column, various and assorted election contests will be decided, barring any ties too close to call. Since so many have been tied up in this process, there hasn't been much news to report in Andover during the past pre-election week.

On Election Day, the traditional voting day supper was held at the First Congregational Church. This Hunter's Supper was chaired by Esau and Amber Cooper with much help from friends and church members. Those who wore hunter orange were eligible for the door prize drawing, which was a Hunter's Survival Kit donated by Pete's Hardware.

There will be a Christmas Sale at the First Congregational Church on December 8. Marsha Burns is the general chairman of this event. Crafters and others desiring table space should call her at 392-1894. Tables are $15 each or 2 for $20. Coffee and donuts will be provided when the sale opens at 8:30 a.m. There will also be baked goods, a Christmas table featuring decorations and greens, and a luncheon.

Next week, I'll be able to report on news from the snowmobile club and other organizations meeting this week.

Last Sunday afternoon Shiloh was out in the front yard "helping" me rake leaves and load them into my leaf wagon. We were getting along pretty well, with him only occasionally grabbing one of the small tree branches out of my hand before I could get them into the wagon. Suddenly, I looked up to see Steve Crone and three young girls on an ATV being pulled by a team of 10 or 12 husky dogs passing by our front lawn. Of course, Shiloh saw them too and immediately dashed out into the road to greet all those "lively playmates!" Ignoring all my shouts of admonition and calls for Shiloh to come back, Shiloh pranced down to the middle of the string of huskies, jumped up and down with his best "Let's play!" gyrations and evaded every attempt I made to grab his collar.

First, he pranced by me to join the lead pair of huskies; then he again evaded me and ran back to the trailing team with the same gyrations. This series was repeated several times until I got angry and shouted, "Bad dog!" in my most authoritative voice. This slowed him down, and when I told him to "sit," he allowed me to grab his collar.

Shiloh is normally really well behaved, except when another animal appears, and then it's "Play time" and "Tease Daddy" time!

A couple of Sundays ago, I got to talking to a friend about our hopes for a better working government after the election. He said, "You know, I work for a gas company, and the ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) has just come out with another of those ridiculous rules requiring us to accommodate the handicapped. This one takes the cake. It requires us to install instructions on every gas pump in Brazil!" Think about that.

I am an amateur "history buff," and I enjoy reading a range of non fiction novels about many aspects of American history. I am currently about 3/4 through "Undaunted Courage" by Stephen Ambrose. This is the amazing story of the Lewis and Clark expedition ordered by President Thomas Jefferson in 1803 to explore the newly acquired Louisiana Purchase territory and to try and find a trade route over the Rocky Mountains and down the Columbia River to the Pacific Ocean.

It details the prodigious efforts that Meriwether Lewis took to plan all the details involved in equipping a party of 30 men with boats, guns and enough supplies, ammunition and gunpowder to support a trip into uncharted territory inhabited by hostile natives and estimated to take at least two years! The trip was to navigate and explore the Missouri River from St. Louis to its headwaters in the Rocky Mountains, find a route through the mountains and down the other side and then to travel down the Columbia River to the Pacific Ocean. They also had to plan for the return trip via the reciprocal route without the expectation of receiving any assistance or re-supply by sailing vessels which might be at the mouth of the Columbia River.

This 4,000 mile journey was without benefit of modern technology beyond muskets, gunpowder and crude celestial observation instruments which resulted in calculation of their approximate location when the sky could be observed with the naked eye. Their only means of propulsion were by manpower (paddles, poles and ropes), wind assistance, and water, when it flowed in a favorable direction, and, hopefully, horses which could be purchased from the Indians to help carry some of their supplies over the mountains.

The Whitman Memorial Library program is today (Nov. 8) at 2 p.m. Suzanne Dunham, Greenwood, will provide the program on "Honey Bees and other pollinators." She will describe to us the practice and mystery of beekeeping and the importance of honeybees and other pollinators to us and our environment. Brian and Suzanne Dunham have had bees for five years at their Greenwood home. The public is invited, no charge, light refreshments.

On Saturday, Nov. 10, Franklin Grange 124 will hold a mock Hee Haw Show at the hall at 7 p.m. Come support the Grange and have a fun evening.

The Woodstock Historical Society will hold its meeting on Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Town Conference Room. The program, by Vern Maxfield, is talking on the upcoming bicentennial. Light refreshments follow the program. The meeting starts at 6 p.m.

Judith Grover tent 17 DUVCW will meet on Monday, Nov. 12, at Alice Hoyt's. Nomination of officers, and please bring your items for Togus at this meeting.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday school at 9:15; morning worship at 10:30; evening service at 8; and prayer meeting on Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Marilyn Morgan.

Larry Billings recently gave the program at the Woodstock Historical Society on the paperwork at the Museum.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens met at the Locke Mills Church on Thursday, Nov. 1, for a meeting and delicious soup and chowder dinner put on by the Ladies Circle. A fun game party was held. Next meeting is at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills on Dec. 6. The program will be The Forestdale School Bell-ringers. There will be an exchange of gifts, if you want to bring a gift to exchange. Cards may be exchanged. Bring something for the food pantry and Kids for Christmas.

Remember Veterans Day is Sunday, Nov. 11. The Legion will be having a program and flag burning at 1 p.m. on that day.

Albany

By CATHY BENNETT

Greetings from beautiful downtown Albany! We are enjoying our newly paved road. I hope that people will respect the fact that it is a nice scenic drive, not a race track. There are many elderly people who have to cross the road to get their mail or paper.

Now that all of my technology is back up and running I can once again write my news. Computers are wonderful until there is a malfunction.

Dave Bennett visited me last week to do a little hunting and some yard work for me. Tonight I am at Doug and Jen's enjoying a nice home cooked meal of beans, hot dogs and biscuits.

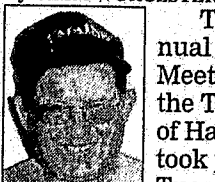

Have a good week everyone, and I hope you all voted on Tuesday.

SLIPPERY JOB-When IF&W biologists Jim Pellerin and Brian Lewis netted fish recently in Lake Christopher in order to gather information about them, SAD 17 students visiting the University of Maine 4-H Camp for the day had the opportunity to watch - and participate. Here, Alora Gordon, a sixth-grader from South Paris, takes a fish from Pellerin to let it go.

Hanover

By CLEM WORCESTER

The Annual Town Meeting for the Town of Hanover took place Tuesday, Oct. 20, at the Hanover Town House. The 23 voters attending elected Jim Barker as moderator while Brenda Lee B. Gross was elected to a three-year term as a select person. She has been chairperson of the Select Board for several years. Clem Worcester was elected to one-year terms as town clerk, tax collector and treasurer. All requested money amounts were passed as recommended. Before the town meeting citizens heard an explanation of Hanover's relationship to Regional School Unit 10 and the budget formulating process from the Select Board and Superintendent Dr. Tom Ward from RSU 10.

Rumford Grange is having a Veterans Day dinner on Nov. 11, at the Grange Hall. The meal will consist of turkey with all the fixings. The cost is $8 for adults and $4 for children under 12. Veterans will get a free meal. Serving begins at noon and ends at 1:30 p.m.

Rumford Grange had a Halloween Party on Oct. 30. Ten children attended the party and got grab bags of goodies along with food and drink. There were two drawings for $10 prizes. The winners were Shawnee Worcester and Skie Braun.

As of late last week 14 deer had been tagged at the Inland Fish and Wildlife tagging station at Gordie Howe's Store. The staff at the Hanover Town Office is preparing the tax bills for this year. The same as last year, a 2 percent discount will be allowed if paid before Dec. 31.

Remember to license your dog. Licenses are due

Dec. 31. Be sure to bring up-to-date rabies certificates and spay/neuter certificates to successfully complete the process.

So. Woodstock

By LOLALEE DILLINGHAM

Condolences to the families of Mary-Anne Martin and Kendall Hadley. Thoughts and prayers are going out to each family member on the loss of their loved ones.

The Woodstock monument committee is searching for Veterans from South Woodstock to be listed on the new monument addition. Any Veteran that served (in peace or war) from 1815 to present and lived in (or is buried in) Woodstock is eligible. We would like to add names of South Woodstock Veterans to those who are already on the monument. There are forms available at the town office to fill out and return with copies of honorable discharge papers or other proof of honorable service.

So loving those cool nights and warm days, makes for a restful sleep at night and the warm sun during the day as it warms up the house.

My friend BJ, rode with me to Lewiston on Wednesday, we stopped and enjoyed a nice lunch at the China Buffet. The band then entertained the residents at the nursing home for the afternoon.

Construction is slowing down, Yogi only works a few hours a week now.

Celebrating November birthdays are: Dori Coffin, Bronté Grover, Betty J. Davis, Tammi Bisbee, Ralph Merrill, Thane Eastman, Isabell Brown, Gladys Foster, Joyce Lamb, Amanda Miclon, Faith Verrill, Erlon Hadley, Jerod Verrill, Dale Hadley, Joan Campbell, Heath Poland, Randy Wilday, Eugene Corson, and Tony Stevens. Birthday wishes to each of you, wishing you a great and happy day. I sent Yogi to do a couple of errands for me while I got my column written and into the office by noon.

Get well wishes are going out to Donnie Mason, who is re-cooperating from an accident a week ago - get well soon Donnie, hope to see you out and about real soon, do as the doctors tell you or Kay will be tying you down.

Enjoyed some time with our friends Evelyn and Fred one night last week.

The winter birds are slowly getting here; I have had several Juncos, a Cardinal, lots and lots of Blue Jays, Purple Finches - oh, and by the way there have been over 30 Robins still feeding in the back yard. I would have thought they would have been headed south by now.

The Down East Country Music Association held the Annual Country Legends and Memorials Award show at the Silver Spur (Route 121) Mechanic Falls on Sunday, Nov. 4. The doors opened at 11 a.m. and the show started at 12 noon, paying Tribute to our Country Music Legends.

Well, it's time for me to put my beans on to soak for a baked bean supper tomorrow night.

That's all from the valley this week. Stay well and do enjoy this great weather we have been having.

Waterford

By ROCKIE GRAHAM

It is Nov. 5 and the weather is cold and windy. Days get dark earlier and earlier and that is what I hate about this time of year. I like the weather but I hate that the dark days are coming. There is nothing I can do to change it they will come when they want, but it is only six weeks until winter solstice when the days start growing longer again. The wood is in the leaves are blown; now we just have to keep the fire going to stay warm, and by the time you read this the elections will hopefully be all over.

It was awful to watch all the destruction in New York, New Jersey, and elsewhere on the coast. I feel for those people but am glad help was headed their way. Knowing how long it took us to recover from our house burning, I can only imagine how hard it is to lose the whole neighborhood. Mother Nature had fun with us once again. Perhaps doubters will begin to believe in the effects of global warming.

Thursday, the 8th, barring a snowstorm, ACA will meet at the Waterford Library. If there is doubt, please call 739-9115 to check and make sure it happens. It will be a discussion group about the 12 steps.

Thursday, the 8th at 6 p.m. at the North Waterford Congregational Church on 5 Kezars Road there will be a potluck supper. There will be live music by Marjorie Kimball and the Jones Band at 7 p.m. It is hosted by the Waterford Historical Society.

Sunday, Nov. 11, is Veteran's Day and at 2 p.m. there will be a Ceremony at the Maine Veteran's Home, 477 High Street, South Paris. Flag raising will be by the Cub Scout Pack 130. There will be a POW-MIA presentation by Marine Veteran and resident Lee McCall. FMI please call the home at 743-6300.

Sunday, Nov. 11, is the birthday of our granddaughter, Sarah Hebert. Happy Birthday Sarah!

Sunday, Nov. 11, from 4 to 6 p.m. Mountain Poets will meet at the Fare Share Common. All poets and poetry lovers are invited to come and read from their work or someone else's or just listen. FMI please call Lisa at 743-9808 or Rockie at 739-9115.

That is all for this week. Hopefully the storm will not be too bad and we will all come out well.

CRESCENT PARK SCHOOL

Peyton Meader and Nana at CPS Grandparents' Day in Mrs. Wight's classroom.

Evan Leach with his Grandfather Lloyd Carver at Grandparents' Day at CPS.

Colleen Warner from Lyon's Orchard visited the second graders in October to tell us about growing apples. She gave every child a gift bag with a book about apples, a branch, and an apple.

Teachers within SAD #44 have been working since September to update their technological knowledge to be able to use and create lessons for SmartBoards. A SmartBoard is an interactive projection display used in classrooms. These devices enable teachers to combine websites, images, sound, and videos into engaging presentations children can manipulate. By the end of the course (which concludes in January), the staff pictured at left will have spent well over twenty-four "after school" hours in a class offered through the district. This course will allow teachers to adapt previously created materials as well as create their own interactive lessons for their learners. So many teachers requested this training that a second offering will take place from January to June with instructors Karen DeCarolis and Brenda Wight.

CPS LEGO LEAGUE is competing in the annual tournament Dec. 8. This year's theme is Senior Solutions focusing on solutions to problems that are specific to our aging population. We may team up with the LOCAL Foods groups and try to help seniors order, pay for, and in some cases, have delivered local foods. Our team has to come up with the solution and present before we go to the tournament. The tournament consists of a game designed on a 4 x 8 board. There are challenges on the board with a wide range of difficulty. The team completes the challenges and receives points. There is a time limit for each round of 2 and 1/2 minutes. The other aspects of the competition include robot design, programming, team work, and presentation of the solution to the problem described in your project. In the picture, students are sitting with their grandparents after a day of questioning. We invited them to come and talk with us in order to get a better idea of what problems seniors face. We learned that picking things off the floor, reaching over one's head, and remembering were some of the hardest things for seniors to do. Students and coaches pictured are, front: Chala Alford, Dylan Greenberg, Alex Baribeau, Charles Hodge and Trey Meader. Back: Eric Boyle-Wight (coach) Ben Alford, Gaelan Boyle-Wight, Jack Malory, Max Ochtera, Marie Keane (coach).

WOODSTOCK ELEMENTARY

Woodstock Elementary School recently observed Fire Prevention Day. Firefighters from Greenwood and Woodstock were on hand to let the students look through their equipment and explain how it worked.

TELSTAR MIDDLE/HIGH SCHOOL

Super Heroes: 8th grader Emily Brownstein, 6th grader Koley True, and 7th grader Erin Childs. Super Heroes are students who have shown exemplary qualities of respect, perseverance, and acceptance of others. These three young ladies are shining examples of kindness toward others and we are proud to have them at our school.

Dr. James Dill, entomologist from the University of Maine Orono, came to Telstar on Oct. 19 and spoke to various classes about his work at the University and other career options offered at Orono. The science department is trying to bring people into school to talk about careers in science as a means to increase awareness of science as a career. Dr. Dill is a graduate of UMO, received his masters and doctorate from the Purdue University and has been at UMO for 31 years. He is the head entomologist for the State, currently leading the research on agriculture pests/diseases in Maine.

Seventh grade at Telstar Middle School has started off their year balancing NWEA's, NECAP testing, hosting the first middle school dance, taking a field trip to the Shaker Museum in New Gloucester, and spending two days at the Bryant Pond 4-H Conservation Camp. Needless to say, students have been kept busy in a variety of ways!

A Day No Pigs Would Die by Robert Newton Peck, is a novel that students begin the year with in Grade 7 that is great for exploring different types of figurative language and develops a theme around growing up. Robert is a young boy in rural Vermont, who lives by many of the Shaker values. On Sept. 25, the entire 7th grade toured the Shaker Museum in New Gloucester, to learn more about how the Shakers lived over the past 200 hundred years, right here in the state of Maine. Some key points that students walked away from were how the Shakers preserved, utilized and sold herbs, their tremendously artful basketry skills and incredible furniture making capabilities. Ms. Learned used this trip as an opportunity to read the first two chapters of the book out loud to students next to the Meeting House on property.

Building relationships amongst peers in advisory and being mindful of energy in our environment, as well as local ecology were the primary focal points that 7th graders worked on Oct. 15 and 16 at the Bryant Pond 4-H Conservation Camp in Bryant Pond. Staff of the camp made sure students stayed active and engaged while working on the low ropes challenge course, having amazing choice time activities such as the zip line, canoeing, fishing and archery. One major focus of the two days dealt with energy. A major point that students walked away from was that energy cannot be produced or destroyed, but it can be wasted. Therefore, 7th grade students will be challenged in their advisories to work on service learning plans that help to foster less waste in our school community.

Other Announcements: Telstar is forming a PTA. We have had an organizational meeting and are looking for interested members. The first member meeting will be Dec. 4 at 6 p.m. in the Telstar Library. Please join us!

News from Mr. Condello's Grade 2/3 Class at AES

Our class has been exploring United States history. We learned about many famous Americans, including Martin Luther King Jr., Harriet Tubman, Abraham Lincoln and Albert Einstein. After finishing our work with famous Americans, I am excited to introduce the students to the fascinating histories of other cultures.

In addition to our study of historical figures from the US, we are also studying the amazing world of cells in science. We are learning that cells have a brain too. It is called a nucleus.

When we are not learning about cells and US history, we also go on safaris through the special world of reading and writing. We are currently studying vowel sounds and learning about how to describe characters with multiple details.

As always, we are continuing to practice mathematics. The second grade is working on subtraction facts and word problems. The third grade is studying multiplication. Both the second and third grades have been learning basic fractions.

Some third graders have demonstrated that they are ready for basic division! We are enjoying the year, and are looking forward to a bright future of learning.

MAC's "In The Blood" at Telstar

The lives and times of Maine's hardy lumbermen and river drivers will be detailed in a multi-media presentation of film, photos and original music by Sumner McKane on Nov. 16 at 7 p.m. The original film and score "In the Blood" will be presented in a public performance at the Telstar Auditorium, 284 Walkers Mills Road, Bethel. Tickets are $5 for seniors 65-plus and children under 12; adults are $7. Lumbermen began living in logging camps in the Maine woods in the early 1800s. They were the pioneers who created a successful self-contained working community in the woods, and on whose backs the state's economy and history were largely established. They were the innovators who established the method to cut and deliver hundreds of millions of board feet of lumber through thick forests and down crooked waterways, to the mills - using only horses, oxen and manpower. They were unique in their character, ethics, morals, strength, and skills, and they symbolize Maine's gritty and resilient reputation. These are some of the most notable figures in Maine's history; yet their stories, personalities and significance are largely overlooked by educators and historians. The illustration that "In The Blood" provides, sheds a new light on the character, history, and importance of these legendary Maine men. The performance incorporates film, live, original music and projections of still images.

As a child, McKane was fascinated by stories he heard in school about the rough and dangerous lives of Maine lumberjacks. For "In the Blood," he compiled archival film and still photographs of the logging industry from the turn of the 20th century into a documentary both entertaining and educational.

The film illustrates and investigates these individuals, their character and history, and takes viewers into their rugged world - the camps, the haul roads, landings and yards, rivers and lakes. The experience is a striking virtual journey into the 19th-century Maine woods.

A singer-songwriter of folk-rock and Americana music, McKane also created the score for the film, which he'll perform with his bandmate Joshua Robbins.

REAL ESTATE AD DEADLINE: FRIDAY AT NOON

Obituaries

ROBERT L. BROWN
Robert Louis Brown, 77, of South Paris, passed away peacefully on Monday, Nov. 5, 2012 at his home on Elm Hill surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Fryeburg on Dec. 11, 1934, son of Shirley and Beatrice Brown.

He attended Fryeburg area schools as a young boy then completed his education at Fryeburg Academy.

He joined the United States Army during peacetime serving his country proudly.

He worked several years as a mill worker at Norway Shoe, and at the closure of the shoe shop he began working at Paris Manufacturing as a machine set-up man where "Bob" was well liked and became known as a man who gave his best and always had a "can do attitude." He always prided himself on the fact that his machines ran well nearly never breaking down. Upon closure of Paris Manufacturing he began working at Cornwalls and once again held a position of machine set-up man. He retired at 71 years of age.

He was known for his woodworking abilities and made many handcrafted wooden gifts for his children and grandchildren; gifts of cutting boards, rolling pins, foot stools, high chairs and sleds.

He enjoyed celebrating the holidays and getting his family gathered together. He enjoyed wildlife of all kinds as well as the joy he received from his pets, Teddy his dog, Tom and Max his rescue cats and found much joy in his visits with his "granddogs" and feeding the birds. He also enjoyed Saturday "nights out" with his beloved wife, Cheryl, of 35 years and was very proud of the home he built all by himself on Elm Hill.

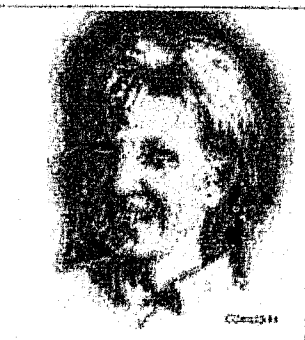

He is survived by his beloved wife, Cheryl Hanscom Brown of South Paris; his six children, Teresa Curtis of Oxford, Marilyn Swan and husband

James of Bethel, Connie Bergen and partner Starr Waisanen of Kennebunk, Robert Louis and his wife Jenna of Poland, Suzanne Atkinson and husband Michael of Cornville, Natalie Patch and husband Donald of New Hampshire; his only remaining sibling, a sister, Marjorie Douglas and husband Bob of Grand Prairie, Texas; sister-in-law, Sally Brown of Fryeburg; 15 grandchildren, Melissa Ostrowski, Bion Swan, Kyle Curtis, Michael Swan, Sarah Swan, Adam Curtis, Peter Brown, Tyler Curtis, Becky Brown, Christopher Pike, Katie Coombs, Zachary Pike, Allie Coombs, Jacob Coombs, and Chance Brown; many nieces and nephews.

He was predeceased by his parents, Shirley and Beatrice Brown; grandmother, Nettie Patch at the age of 110; brothers, Shirley Brown and Norman Pelletier; and son-in-law, Craig Curtis.

His family express their gratitude for the kind, compassionate care of the entire staff at Stephens Memorial Hospital, Pace Ambulance staff, the staff at Norway Rehabilitation and Living Center, the staff at Androscoggin Home Health and Hospice, Walter Bean, CNA for his care of the "captain," special friends and neighbors, Charlie and Laurie Young, and Sandra Rice.

A funeral service was held Nov. 10 at Oxford Hills and Weston Funeral Services, Oxford, followed by a burial at Riverside Annex in South Paris. In lieu of flowers donations may be made in Robert's memory to Responsible Pet Care, P.O. Box 378, Norway, ME 04268. Online condolences may be expressed to the family at www.oxfordhillsfuneralservices.com

KATHERINE J. BRUNJES

Katherine J. Brunjes, of Bethel, Maine, after a courageous battle with cancer, passed away peacefully with her family by her side on Nov. 1, 2012.

The daughter of Jean and Janet McIntire Brunjes of Norway, she was born in Brunswick, Maine, on March 23, 1953. She graduated from Brunswick High School, received a Bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Maine and a Master's degree in Library and Informational Sciences from the University of South Carolina.

For the last 13 years, Kathy served as the Director of Library Services at the Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston. She was nationally recognized in her field and served twice as chair of the Health Sciences Libraries Consortium in Maine, and also served as chair of the North Atlantic Health Sciences Libraries Board. Kathy received the Eleanor Cains Distinguished Medical Librarian Award in 2005 and was appointed by Governor Baldacci in 2011 as a Commissioner to the Maine State Library/State of Maine Library Commission. She was also instrumental in bringing the Maine Humanities Council Literature and Medicine: Humanities at the Heart of Health Care program to CMCMC.

Kathy was an avid equestrian, logging more than 10,000 lifetime miles in endurance and competitive trail competitions. She competed throughout the United States and the world, including representing the United States in Spain at the 2002, Fédération Equestre Internationale (FEI) World Equestrian Games; the United Arab Emirates in Abu Dhabi, at the 2008, President's Cup; and, in Malaysia at the 2008, FEI World Endurance Championship.

In addition to being a renowned equestrian endurance competitor, Kathy also participated in governance of the sport. Since 2007 she served as a member of the United States Equestrian Federation Board of Directors and on numerous other committees. She was also active in the American Endurance Ride Conference as a committee chair and member.

Kathy particularly enjoyed sharing her knowledge with others and was most proud of the junior and young riders she mentored, including a number in the Bethel area; Cricket Kelly, Lindsay Bean, Calla Orino, and India Orino.

Kathy is survived by her parents; her husband, Thomas Hutchinson; her son, Brandon Murray and wife Robin of Bath; her grandchildren, Jackson and Della Murray; sister, Libby and husband Tim of Brunswick; her sister, Patricia Goodwin and husband Stuart of Norway; her brother, Jay Brunjes and wife Kelly Bentley Brunjes of Farmington; and nieces and nephews, Matthew, Margaret, Byron, Nicolas, and Jarod.

A memorial service celebrating Kathy's life will be held on Friday, Nov. 9, 2012 at 1 p.m. at the Bath Senior Center, 45 Floral Street, Bath.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be sent in Kathy's name to the Eastern Competitive Trail Riding Association, c/o E. Tully, 209 Stone Chimney Road, Reading, Vt. 05062, or The Patrick Dempsey Center for Cancer Hope and Healing at Central Maine Medical Center, 29 Lowell Street, 5th Floor, Lewiston, ME 04240.

LORELEI A. COOPER

Lorelei A. Cooper, 70, of West Paris went to be with the Lord, Nov. 1, 2012 at Ledgeview Living Center, West Paris, with her family by her side.

She was born in Norway, March 30, 1942, the daughter of Vilho John and Dorothy Mae (Emmons) Waisanen. She graduated from West Paris High School and had been employed as a bookkeeper for an insurance company.

She married Christopher Cooper. She enjoyed horses, painting and hunting. She ran Cooper Farms with her husband, Chris, and enjoyed baking for the farm.

She is survived by her husband of West Paris; three sons, Billy Silver and his wife Tammy, Adam Silver and his wife Gail and Tony Silver and his wife Sue; five grandchildren; four sisters, Priscilla Bedard of Norway, Dixie Waisanen of Waterford, Shirley Foster of Greenwood and Cathy Everett of Florida; and two brothers, Terry Waisanen of Greenwood and Ricky Waisanen of Harrison.

She was predeceased by her mother, Dorothy Waisanen; and her father, John Waisanen.

Online condolences may be shared with her family at www.chandlerfunerals.com.

Family and friends attended visitation Sunday, Nov. 4, at Chandler Funeral Homes and Cremation Service, South Paris. Burial will be private at a later date. In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to the American Cancer Society, 1 Bowdoin Mill Island, Topsham, ME 04086.

JENNIE V. KILPONEN

Jennie V. Kilponen, 81, of South Paris, passed away on Saturday, Nov. 3, 2012 at Market Square Health Center, South Paris.

She was born in West Paris, June 15, 1931, the daughter of Joseph and Inez Ring. She was educated in local schools and married Ellis Kilponen Sr., Aug. 18, 1955.

She worked at Penley's and Mecon Manufacturing

Thank You

I want to thank David and Fran Head, Alfred and Sharron Leighton, family and friends that attended my retirement party on Saturday, November 3 at the Bog Brook Training Center. All was greatly appreciated, I am missing all of our townspeople since my retirement.

God Bless,
Beverley Corriveau
Gilead, Maine

for many years. She enjoyed going for rides and clipping coupons.

She is survived by her children, Gail Farr of Canton, Loraine Bonney and her husband Kirby, of Sumner, Debra Kangas of West Paris, Karen Morse and companion of New Hampshire, Belinda Edmunds and her husband Paul of Waterford, Mark Kilponen of South Paris, Ellis Kilponen Jr. and his wife Kathy of South Paris; 16 grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; her brother, Jim Ring and wife Rose of West Paris; her sister, Dolly Walker of South Paris; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

She was predeceased by her parents; her husband of 53 years; her brother, Jack Ring; and her son-in-law, Leland Kangas.

Online condolences may be shared with the family at www.chandlerfunerals.com.

Graveside services will be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 10, at Wayside Cemetery in West Paris.

Donations may be made to Alzheimer's Association, www.Alz.org/Maine, or mail to Alzheimer's Association, Maine Chapter, 383 U.S. Route 1, Suite 2C, Scarborough, ME 04074.
